The whole team moves forward with AI, each in their own job.

Nova shows each person what AI can do in their job, guides them to the result, and keeps them up to date. The company stays in control of tools and budget.

It's possible, in Nova: pick a result, and Nova gives you the exact prompt.

What Nova does for a team

A path for every job

Everyone sees what AI changes in their work: 140 jobs, 1,320 concrete use cases, with the tool, the steps, and the prompt to copy.

Tools, under control

A budget per person, a catalog of approved tools, requests approved in one click.

Always up to date

193 tools tracked. What vendors release, and what it changes for each job. Every tool page carries its check date.

Never surveillance

The administrator can't see a member's questions or activity. Team trends, not the details. The company sees who finished a training it asked for, and when.

The assessment.

Five minutes to see what can change.

Optional, in four steps. You say who does what on your team; Nova answers task by task: the tool that can take it on, how to set it up, what it costs, and the time that can come back each week. An estimate, with its assumption written next to it, which you can adjust.

1
Your company
understood from its website, easy to correct.

2
Who does what roles, tasks, hours per week.

3
Your tools
and, if you like, your hourly cost.

4
The report
task by task, then a 30-day plan.

Automate

Nova spots what you keep doing by hand, and guides you step by step to automate it.

- Only you can see your week. Your company has no access to it.

The extension and the app

The Nova extension
The guide inside your assistants: it shows you where to click and what to write, right in ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini.

Nova for Mac and Windows (beta)
It watches how you work on your Mac or PC, and tells you what to automate.

Nova on your phone
The Nova you know, with its icon on your home screen. Nothing to download.

- Your screens never leave your computer. Nova reads them on your computer, keeps only the list of your actions, and deletes the image right away.
